We dedicate this annual to the development of character that comes through knowledge, skill, and the appreciation of moral and spiritual values.

From these funda-mentals comes the concept of the worth of the individual in our American way of life.

The junior class began this year's activities with a meeting at which two proctors were chosen, Mr. Eyler and Mrs. Thomas. In January, however, Mrs. Thomas moved, and Mr. Spencer took her place.

The class was kept very busy all year trying to earn a sufficient amount of money with which to sponsor the Junior-Senior Prom. The first project undertaken was an informal dance held in the school gym, featuring the Luckvettes Band. Following this, they sponsored two bake sales, one in November and one in February which increased their treasury somewhat. During the Christmas season unshelled nuts were sold by the Juniors. This was also very successful in that over two hundred pounds were sold.

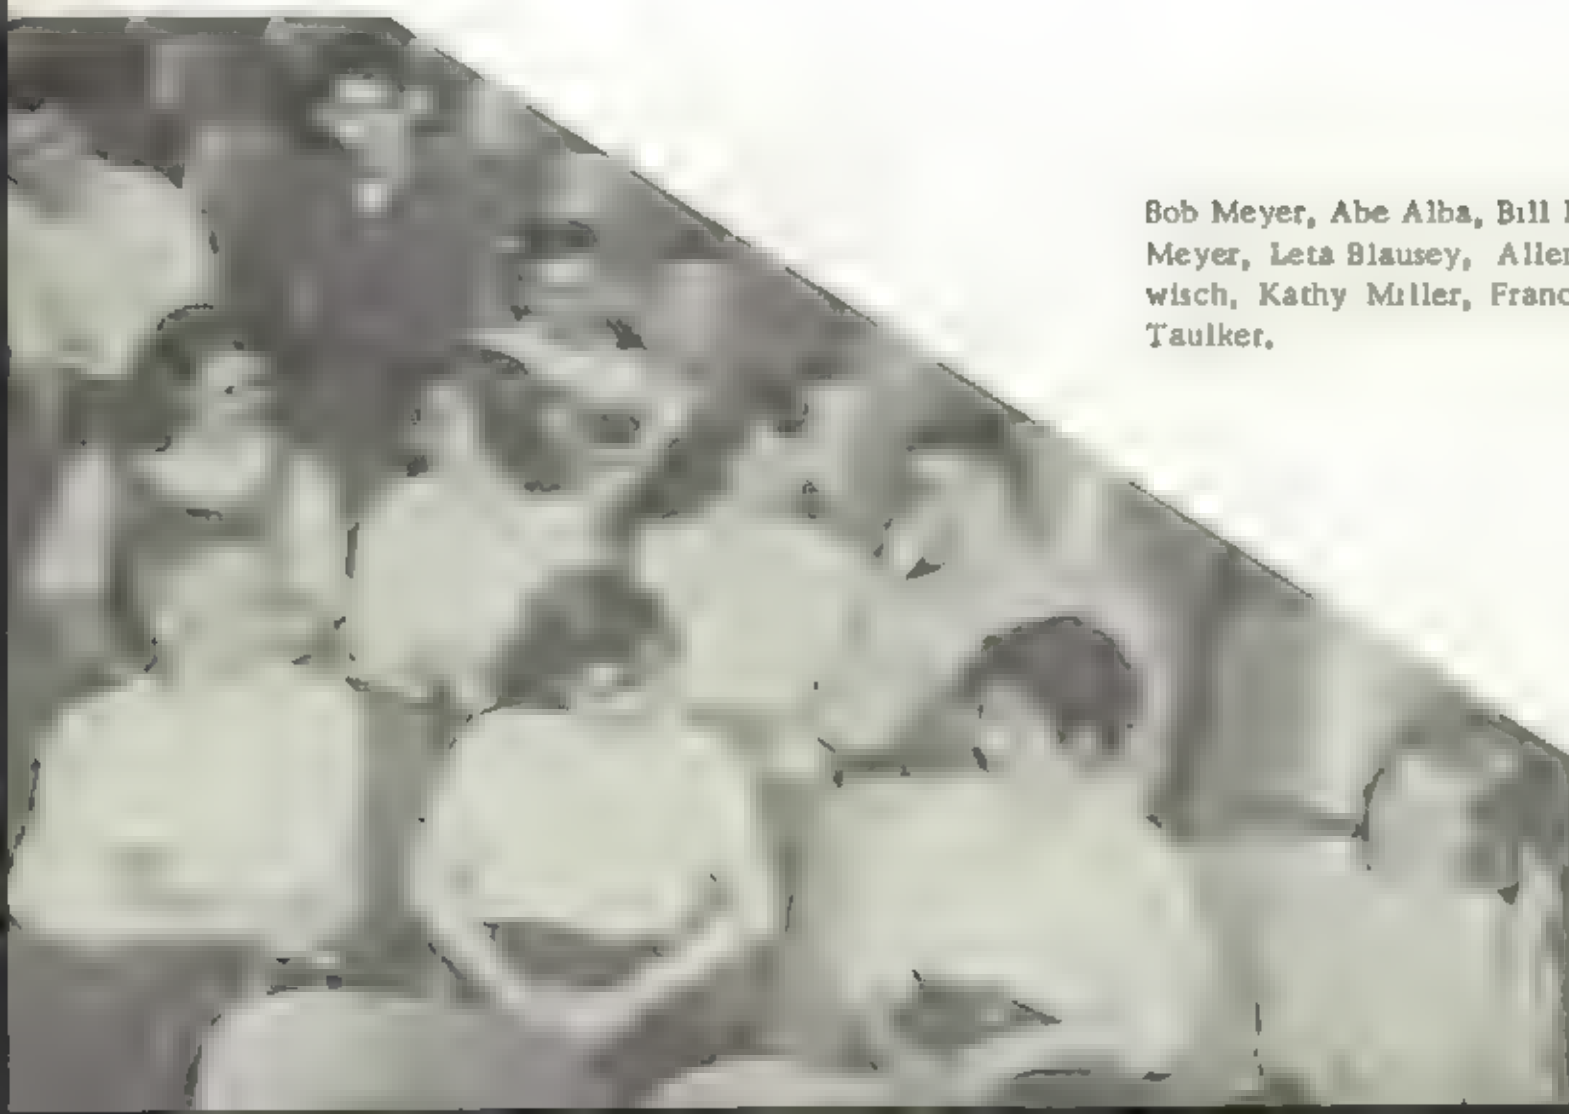

In December a meeting was held at which committees for the Prom were chosen, and plans were drawn up concerning decorations and layout. The remainder of the year detailed preparations were swiftly carried out. The Prom held on May 20 was an occasion long remembered by those who attended.

The Sophomores held their second annual Box Social and Faculty Auction in the fall of '54. The boxes were bigger and better; the auctioneer was livelier, although the profit wasn't as large. Both years it proved to be an evening filled with fun.

This project was followed by plans for an All-Winter Scrap Drive which netted the class good returns and kept them busy on week-ends.

The majority of the class helped to pick up corn in the late fall, and this added a substantial sum to their treasury although it required much physical exertion.

Their Student Council representatives for the year were Carol Bruns and Walden Damschroder.

The Freshmen opened the '54-'55 year with the election of officers. Linda Mauntler was chosen as the new Student Council representative in place of Raylene Rollins. Dues of one dollar a year were put into effect.

The major money-making projects of the class were a car wash, held in October, and taking over the sale of concession at several of the home basketball games.

EIGHTH GRADE

The first event for the eighth grade was a Christmas Party which was held in the music room. They played games and then went to the cafeteria where they enjoyed a very tasty supper and exchanged gifts.

The Student Council representatives were voted to Susan Sheffer and Florencio Flores.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Schiefer, their proctor, they collected tax stamps and netted a fine profit. Each student contributed ten cents a month to the treasury.

The last activity of these eighth graders was a party at the end of the school year.

all-school play

The four one-act plays were presented March 11 with a cast representing the upper four grades.

"Girls Must Talk" finds Carol Bruns and Joyce Taulker as window dressers arranging finery in "dammies." Vicky Blackmore, Gail Frobose, Dewanna Lisk and Mary Lou Taulker, who manage to say quite a bit both in their own behalf and to the disparagement of window dressers in general.

In "Playwright's Dilemma," Allan Koch portrays the playwright who is trying to decide how to end his play. Nothing he works out with the aid of his "characters" (Bobby Ameling, Marilyn Avers, Pat Wilkolek, Bob Bockbrader, Wade Schulte, and Dave Young) seems to please him. At last, when almost in desperation, he hits upon the solution to his dilemma.

"Hour of Honor" concerns a man who has let his son take the blame for a crime which he himself committed. The man (Dave Young) has failed to keep the one promise exacted by the son when the latter took upon himself the father's guilt and punishment. Suspecting that the father may know why the son has grown so bitter during his stay in prison, the uncle (Ed Botts) attempts to force the issue and learn the truth on the very day when the son, having served his sentence, is expected home. The roles of the mother, the fiancée, and the neighbor are portrayed respectively by Mary Lou Niedermeyer, Miriam Obermyer, and Carol Meyer.

The action of "The Valiant" revolves around a man condemned to death. The role of the prisoner-to-be-executed is taken by Ed Botts, the warden, by Allen Crandall, the prison chaplain, by Ed Bruns; the girl, by Virginia Camper; the jailer and the attendant by Galen Sandwisch and Abe Alba, respectively.

SENIOR play

Wednesday, November 10, by special arrangement with Samuel French, "Spring Green," a delightful comedy by Ryerson and Clements was presented by the Senior Class.

The action revolves around a boy whose father cannot understand him because his interests in life are not those of the so-called boy. Repeated attempts of the father to reach his son are thwarted by the boy's apparent indifference to all those things which the father deems important. Then at the very moment when a satisfactory solution seems to have been found, the son, who hitherto has been wholly unaware that girls even exist, develops an almost maudlin attachment for the sister of one of his classmates. From then on, of course, complications multiply, until the solution to all problems is finally found.

Edward Botts has the role of the son who affords his father (John Little) many occasions for worry, irritation and consternation, especially after he becomes infatuated with the sister (Mary Lou Niedermeier) of his classmate (Allen Damschroder). The father in his turn is very much interested in his widowed childhood sweetheart (Lynne Witmer) who is herself the understanding mother of two daughters. The older girl (Bobby Ameling) has a crush on the high school hero (Terry Magsig) whose affections are vied for by Doris Happeny. The youngest daughter (Judy Radeloff) together with the irascible grandfather (Willie Emch) and the cook (Joyce Taulker) further complicate the affairs of the household. Others who manage in one way or another to add to the entanglement are Faye Baumer, Roy Huston, Roger Hinricks, Sadie Pirtle, and Edward Bruns. The play was under the direction of Miss Antoneda P. Huyssen.

DRAMATICS ASSOCIATION

Much of the credit for the success of the plays at Woodville High School should rightly fall on the Dramatics Association. This group of students holds monthly meetings in which various phases of the theater are studied. At one of the most interesting meetings this year, Miss Huyssen explained the history of make-up in the theater. Following this stirring lecture, the meeting took the form of a workshop in which the members practiced making-up themselves and fellow actors.

Reading plays aloud is another favorite activity at the Dramatics Association's meetings.

Experimenting with short scenes and action with sound effects provided the members an interesting and informative meeting. They tape-recorded these scenes, played them back, and then, as they found their errors, tried to make improvements.

This year the Student Council worked very diligently on the organization of assembly programs beneficial to the student body. After many obstacles a pay telephone was obtained by the council for the use of students making personal calls. The Homecoming basketball game and coronation of the season's basketball queen and court was again under the direction of this body. Another undertaking was the organization of a Safety Patrol for next year. Probably the most outstanding project of the council this year was the editing of a Student Handbook. The handbook is for the purpose of giving the student a better knowledge of the way our school is operated. It contains such things as school history, school rules and regulations, academic standards of our school, some of the school cheers, the school song, the organizational setup and the constitutions of the various clubs operating within the school, and a detailed description of the way the library functions.

national honor society

The National Honor Society recognizes that the outstanding student is not merely a "bookworm" or a "grind" but one who is worthy in character, unselfish in giving himself to his school and community and noted, too, for leadership. Hence, to become a member he must meet the requirements of scholarship, character, service, and leadership.

The purposes of the club are to create, maintain, and extend, throughout the school and community high standards of Christian character. The club is open to any junior or senior boys.

The club sponsored a special Easter assembly and had several swimming parties at the Y.M.C.A. They hope to take a trip at the end of the school year.

This year, like many other years, F.H.A. has maintained a very lively schedule.

The first of many activities was an initiation held on December 20, at which 6 new members were installed. At the following meeting, a Pot Luck supper was held, for which the girls brought tasty dishes that they prepared.

At Christmas, there was an exchange of presents among Mrs. Melick and the members, during which refreshments were served. On February 7, the seniors prepared and served a dinner for the underclassmen. A few weeks later the underclassmen assumed the role of hostesses and gave the Seniors a party.

Officers presiding for the year in F.F.A., Dave Blausey, President; Allen Damschroder, Vice-President; Dave Camper, Secretary; Howard Schroeder, Treasurer; Richard Noll, Sentinel; and Mr. Frey, Advisor; were elected at an early meeting held in September. Allen Damschroder was chosen at this meeting, to receive the State Farmers Degree which was conferred on him by State F.F.A. officers in Columbus.

In October, Marvin Blausey, Dan Liskai, Roger Lenke, Robert Taulker, and Leroy Walston were elected to the chapter as Green Hands. Where as the former Green Hands of last year, Bud Damschroder, Harold Miller, Herb Miller, Bud Lueke, and Charles Emch were chosen to the Chapter Farmer Degree. Several of the boys appeared on the farm program of W.S.P.D. T.V. where they gave a television demonstration on Improved Soil Management. Those participating in the program were Allen Damschroder, Dave Camper, Bob Bockbrader, Dave Blausey, Richard Noll, and Howard Schroeder.

During November, the chapter conducted a rat extermination campaign by selling 150 pounds of warfarin to the nearby farmers. In connection with this a pest hunt was staged, won by Charles Emch.

The Chapter cooperates with other chapters in the county in various activities. Some are: County Banquet, Judging Contests, Fair exhibits, and Junior Fair Board.

CHORUS

The chorus and their new director, Mr. Neil Heiss, spent the first few weeks becoming acquainted.

At the Christmas P. T. A. meeting and the high school's Christmas assembly, they presented the cantata, "Song of Christmas", arranged by Fred Waring. Through solos therein, their individual vocal talents were displayed.

The high school students enjoyed the Easter assembly program which the chorus presented.

Many of the members of the chorus participated in the County Chorus Festival held in Townsend. They all agreed they had a delightful time.

Gary Hahn, Marilyn Avers, Diane Magsig and Virginia Camper were our very able accompanists.

f. B. L. A.

The Future Business Leaders of America is an organization for students interested in business. To qualify for membership a student must have taken at least one business subject. The club strives to prepare their members so that they will be more able to face the problems of the modern business world.

The local chapter has been very active this year. They enjoyed a well rounded program of social and business activities. In October two delegates and Mrs. Reitzel attended the State Convention in Cincinnati at which Mary Lou Niedermeyer was elected state reporter. At this meeting the club was recognized as being among the top five chapters in the state.

A Bow Day preceded the Valetine Dance which was held in February. The biggest project of the year was an area district meeting held in March with Woodville as host. The purpose of this meeting was to interest schools without chapters in F.B.L.A. and to stimulate further interest of the present chapters.

LIBRARIANS

This staff of student librarians has diligently executed its daily duties, lending books and magazines, helping find reference material, and keeping accurate records. Many of these students spend much time mending torn, damaged books so that these books may be used for a longer time. Its responsibilities have multiplied with enlarged enrollment and increased financial allotment. We express our appreciation to them for their tireless efforts and to our school board and administration for the increased library funds and improvements.

The band under its new director was very active this year and again brought musical enjoyment and praise to the school and community. Early in the school year lively music was heard throughout the town as the band sharpened its marching technique.

One of the most enjoyable experiences of this group was in presenting a joint concert with Galsburg's band. It provided an opportunity for both organizations to make new acquaintances and work together on an endeavor of common interest.

Representatives of the various sections made up the "pep" band which played at the home basketball games. The snappy marches and ragtime tunes greatly aroused the spirit of both the spectators and the eagers.

The contest held at Hopewell-Louden was another venture from which the band members derived pleasure and musical proficiency. Many hours were spent in practice sessions before participating in the contest.

The Varsity Club is composed of high school boys who have earned their letter in basketball or baseball.

To elect officers this year they used a very unique method. The first three to speak were made President, Vice-President, and Secretary, respectively. Consequently, their officers are:

President	Abe Alba
Vice-President	Ed Botts
Secretary	Coach Eyler

They all enjoyed the basketball game at the Toledo Sports Arena when the Harlem Globetrotters were there.

As a money-making project they are selling score cards at the home games.

On October 27, they welcomed the new members by initiation.

FIRST ROW: Jeannie DeAngelis, Faye Baumer, Mary Peck, Mary Lou Taulker, Helen Riffle, Barb Haas.

Everyone that attended the school variety show sponsored by the G.A.A. on October 8 agreed that its success was due to the magnificent job that Mrs. Rife did in managing the whole affair and the large supply of talent in the high school. The profits were turned over to the village's swimming pool fund.

During the months of December and January, the volleyball team met teams from other area schools in competition. Whether they won or lost, they had a most enjoyable time making new friends.

The basketball season was greeted with glee as Woodville again motored to various schools and entertained those whom they had invited here. The added pep and vitality was largely due to their cheerleaders, Judy Radloff and Doris Happeny.

Ballroom dancing, in which the entire student body participated, ended the year.

queen and court

Homecoming at Woodville High School this year was once more a beautiful and exciting affair. The ceremonies took place on Friday, December 10, the night of the York game. Approximately 375 people witnessed the activities, which will long be remembered.

The four candidates for queen were elected on December 3 in class meetings after the pep rally. The freshmen chose Laurie Blackmore as their candidate; the sophomores elected Janet Webb; the juniors voted for Mary Lou Taulker; and the seniors presented Faye Baumer as their choice for queen.

Following a brief, but spirited, campaign by the various classes for their candidate, Miss Taulker was elected to reign as the '54-'55 basketball queen.

The coronation was held between the reserve and varsity games, with Bobby Ameling narrating the festivities.

Mary Lou's attendants, leading the procession, were escorted by Allan Koch, John VieBrooks and Allen Damschroder.

Mary Myers, our gorgeous '53-'54 basketball queen came down the aisle next, with Tex Botts and Abe Alba doing her honor as escorts.

As the dramatic moment came nearer, Frank Mighion, Junior-High Captain, acted as crown-bearer and preceded our vivacious queen.

The trumpets struck up their fanfare and acting captains, Willard Emch and Terry Magsig escorted Mary Lou up the velvet-covered steps to the stage.

After the queen and her court were arranged in a semi-circular formation, Miss Myers crowned the new queen with a garland of white carnations trimmed in gold ribbon and sprinkled with gold stars.

After the ceremony the queen and her attendants were escorted to reserved seats in the front row, from which they watched the varsity game.

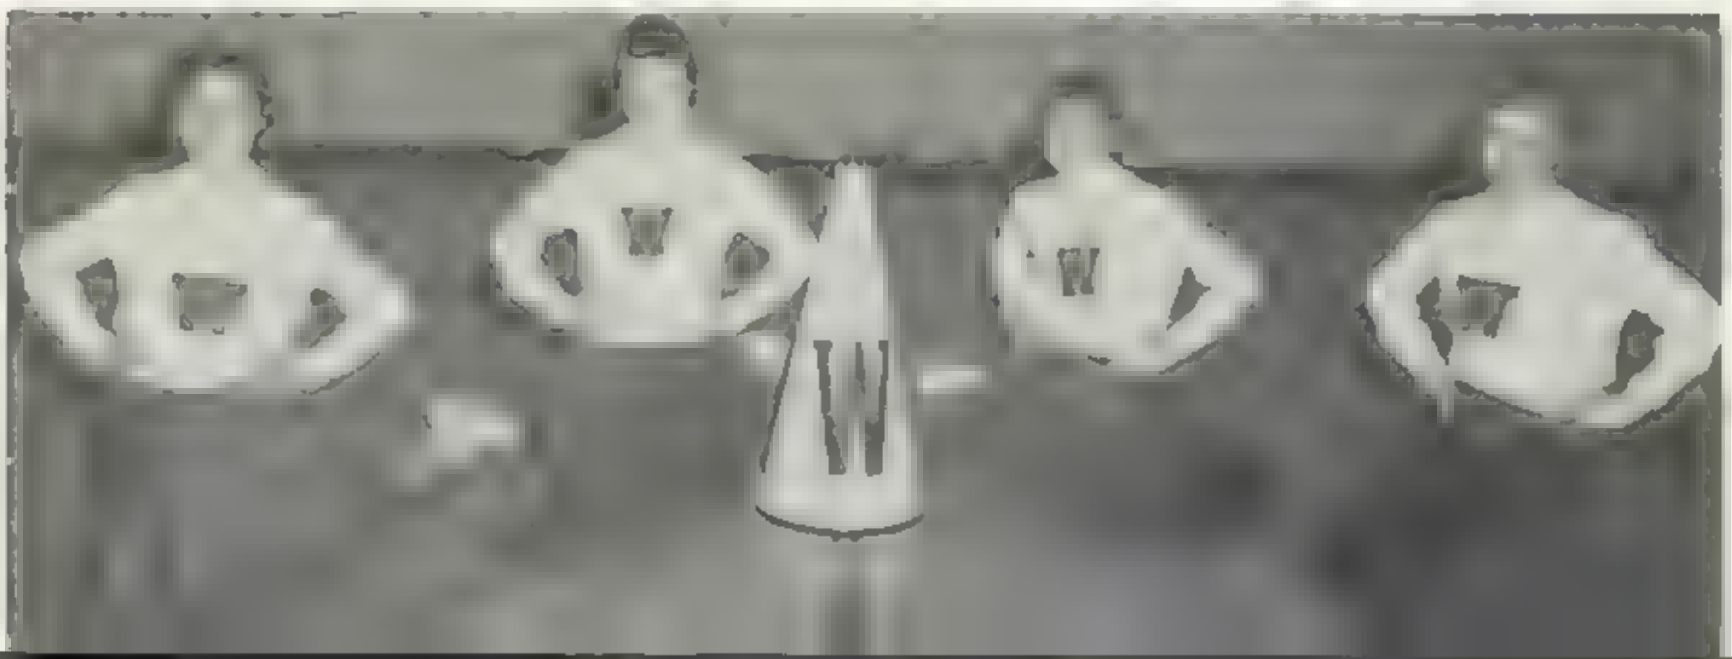

Vicki Blackmore, Jeannie DeAngelis Bobby Ameling, Barb Haas, Mary Lou Faulker.

The '54-'55 cheerleaders were elected by the student body prior to the basketball season. In the fall Woodville was host to an all-county cheerleading clinic. The girls did a fine job of leading the public in cheering the teams through a very successful season.

BASEBALL

The baseball team last fall had a 2-3 won-lost record. Despite the fact that their record was not flashy, Coach Eyler expects a very good spring baseball team and an exceptional team for next year. The starting team has only one senior on it, the rest being composed entirely of sophomores and juniors, showing much promise. This fact encourages Coach to use as many players as possible to build a fine team for the future. We have much faith in our Coach and team and are looking forward to the coming baseball season.
